

Work-Study Position

Our Lab is seeking Work-Study students pursuing careers in chemistry. This work-study job is designed to train students on how to become effective researchers in the field of chemistry. We are primarily interested in students who want to learn first and foremost, with the salary as an afterthought. Prof. Simoyi will pay for only 10 hours per week (maximum), but students in this position are expected to work more hours than these. It is difficult to produce reasonable research results from only 10 hours per week. Interested student must be willing to work with a team of result-oriented researchers.
